RQ Anniversary Archives On the Way!

100-issue archives to be released as PDF files — plus bonus features

This Winter, Reclaiming Quarterly will celebrate our 100th edition by re-issuing our complete archives, going back to the first Reclaiming Newsletter in Winter 1980-81.

with many special features, will be available by subscription — with a discount for current RQ subscribers.

Ordering information and other Frequently Asked Questions

The archives will be re-issued as high-resolution PDF files, which are readable and printable from almost any computer.

You'll be able to see and read every page of the original issues exactly as they appeared — stories, pictures, class and event listings, ads, ink-smudges... You'll also be able to print any pages you want to read off-screen.

In addition, every ten-issue volume will contain bonus features such as photographs, flyers, introductory and reflective essays, audio recordings, humor and satire, and more.

INVOKING OUR HISTORY

For scholars, researchers, and anyone interested in the history of Neo-Paganism, this material will be an invaluable primary source.

For those of us who live and love Reclaiming, it will be much more — the RQ Archives will be a literal invocation of our own history.

Our first ten-issue volume is scheduled for release in Spring 2009.

RQ will place selected highlights on our website. But the sheer quantity of material means most of the archives will be available only on disks.

The entire 100-issue archives, along can be found on the backside of this Bulletin.

Reclaiming Music CDs

Chants & Music available online

Reclaiming has released four CDs of Earth-based chants and music. All four are available on our website.

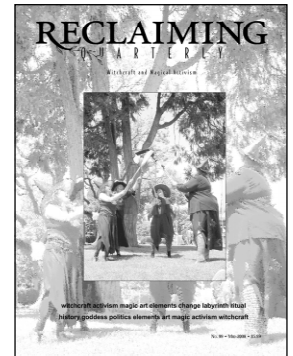

Many Reclaiming musicians and teachers have also released CDs. Witches Brew is a good introduction to Reclaiming's musicians.

Visit www.reclaimingquarterly.org/music, or contact quarterly@reclaiming.org, (415) 255-7623. You can find more pagan music at www.serpentinemusic.com

New Issue Underway

Reclaiming Quarterly published a new print edition in mid-2008, and we plan to produce RQ #100 in early 2009.

As we explained last issue, RQ will be an occasional print publication, with updates posted on our website and in Bulletins.

RQ#99, published mid-2008

RQ San Francisco Intensives

Weekend Reclaiming Classes in SF with residential option

Beginning in early 2009, Reclaiming Bay Area teachers plan to offer a series of weekend classes in San Francisco.

Co-sponsored by RQ, the intensives will include core Reclaiming classes as well as other offerings, and will include optional local housing for the weekend.

For folks from outside the immediate Bay Area as well as local people whose schedules work better on weekends, this is a chance to take Reclaiming classes from San Francisco-based teachers.

Each intensive is complete in itself, and you can take one or several of the classes. Residential housing is optional. Meals will be included in the cost.

We plan to begin with Elements of Magic, since this class (or an equivalent) is the pre-requisite for some other offerings.

RQ Archives — Frequently Asked Questions

How will the archives be released?

RQ will release the back issues 10 at a time, in PDF format. While selected highlights will be available online, the only way to get the entire 10-issue volume — plus all of the special features — will be via disk.

When will 10-issue disks be published?

We plan to release 3-4 disks per year, beginning in early 2009. We expect the entire archives to be available by 2012.

Why not put the archives on the web?

We will — in small segments. The sheer bulk of 100 back issues (not to mention all of the bonus features we will include) makes it impossible to put more than a small sampling online at any one time.

How will I know which back-issues I want?

Look deep into your heart and realize that you actually want all of them! However, if this proves impractical, you will be able to consult the indexes to each volume. Still, your best bet is to get the entire series.

Complete RQ Archives just $175 to RQ subscribers — or $25 per 10-issue disk.

What's with the Bonus Features?

Every volume will include introductory essays reflecting on the growth and changes in Reclaiming, bonus material such as flyers, photographs, Spiral Dance scripts and music, Witchcamp brochures, chant-lyrics, spells, curses, party-jokes — and a complete index to the issues.

What's the cost of the RQ Archives?

Your best deal is to subscribe to the 10-disk series. The cost is just $200 for the ten-volume set. RQ subscribers will receive a special discount — your total for the entire archives is just $175.

Can I pay in installments?

Yes. We ask $30 for each 10-issue disk as it appears ($25 for RQ subscribers).

Is it too late to subscribe to RQ and get the discount?

It's never too late to subscribe to RQ!

Can I buy single issues?

Not at first. It's the Archives Project, not the Single Back Issue Project.

Where does the money go?

Your order pays for scanning equipment and costs, disk-replication, and distribution. Any surplus will help publish future issues of RQ — which in turn will become more archives!

Can I subscribe to the Archives and/or the magazine online?

Yes, you can subscribe and get more info at www.reclaimingquarterly.org/archives/

Can I tell other people about this amazing offer?

Please do! We appreciate folks telling libraries and schools about our Archives.

What if I have old Reclaiming stuff to donate to the archives?

Contact us — see below. We especially want photos, flyers, and other documentary evidence of Reclaiming.

Ordering the RQ Archives — Special Discount for RQ Subscribers!

Save money while helping RQ launch our Anniversary Archives by advance-ordering the entire 100-issue collection.

Our first ten-issue disk will appear in early 2009. Advance-orders will be shipped before any other copies are distributed, so you'll be the first to receive every feature-packed disk — ten back issues plus photos, essays, music, and assorted other bonus material.

Plus — you'll be supporting RQ's Archives project. Much of the expense of this project is up-front, in equipment and scanning time. Your support now will make the archives re-issue possible.

You can also advance-order the disks one at a time. RQ subscribers get a special $25/disk rate — that's ten back-issues for just $2.50 each — not to mention all the bonus features!

Is it too late to subscribe to RQ and take advantage of this special discount?

Never! In fact, there is a special "subscribe" link on the archives page.

Advance subscribers can deduct half of their advance order, and 100% of any further donation. Contact RQ for more information. We are glad to provide a confirming letter.
